KIWANIANS HEAR COMMISSIONERS'S PROGRAM TODAY

Cooke and Evans Both Pledge Bigger and Better Middlesboro—Ask Club to Back Them

SPEAKER FOR CLEAR CREEK SPRINGS CAMP

The two commissioners elect, C. E. Cooke and J. E. Evans, made short talks before the Kiwanis Club today, outlining the courses they intend to pursue as commissioners, both declaring that their chief purpose was to make Middlesboro a bigger and better town, "the best in Kentucky," as Mr. Cooke put it.

Mr. Cooke said in beginning that he did not suppose his platform was so necessary since election time, but that he stood first and last for progress in every department of the city. He declared that he would serve to the best of his ability, without regard for salary, to make this the best town in Kentucky, but that he wanted it understood tha the would not again be a candidate for office, so that there need be no necessity for him to build any "political fences." He said that he did not think it would be possible to lower city taxes any next year, but that he hoped a great deal might be accomplished without any higher taxes. He emphasized the necessity of careful financial management, declared that he favored the discharge of any city officer who did not do his duty, made his position on good, clean streets and better schools plain, and urged the cooperation of all Middlesboro citizens during the next two years.

Evans Also for Cooperation.

Judge Evans echoed this idea of cooperation, and assured the Kiwanis Club members that, individually or in committees, they would always receive a hearing in city affairs when they came to him. He emphasized the necessity of every citizen getting behind the administration to make Middlesboro bigger and better. Judge Evans, who has lived in Bell County all of his life, described the county as he had seen it grow from a few little settlements of five or six hundred people, to a prosperous town of fifty or sixty thousand, with the two flourishing towns of Middlesboro and Pineville. Pineville when he first went there, had only a thin settlement around the fork in the road, now at the entrance to the city. Middlesboro, where he moved twenty years ago, had no street lights, muddy streets and general unsatisfactory conditions. "I expect to live here twenty more years," declared the new commissioner, "and I expect to see as much improvement in that time as I have in the past twenty years."

Both of the commissioners were roundly applauded by the club members.

Another interesting speaker today was Mrs. Mary Camitz of Louisville who came in the interest of the Clear Creek Mountain Springs, the wonderful encampment grounds planned by the Baptists of Pineville and Middlesboro. She stressed the wonderful opportunity of these towns to develop a camp of the Winona and Chautauqua type and she urged the members of the Kiwanis Club to take an active part in making the matter a go. She spoke especially of what this meant to the children of this section, mentally through the summer school and other educational ideas proposed, physically through the athletic equipment, and religiously through the Christian training and fellowship to be obtained there. She announced a sale of bungalow lots for this Springs next Thursday at 10 o'clock, and urged the club individually and collectively to buy lots.

Club Endorses Springs.

The Kiwanis Club endorsed the movement an dvoted to have next week's meeting on Wednesday so that as many Kiwanians as want to may go to the auction sale.

Dr. T. D. Vankirk was chairman today. T. R. Hill won the attendance prize. The silent boost, toy balloons were given by H. E. Verran.

Supt. J. W. Bradner announced that the Pineville-Middlesboro football game would be on Thanksgiving and urged every one in this city to go to Pineville to the game. He said, on being questioned, that so far as he knew Don King would play in the game, but that his record was being investigated closely and that if anything indicating that he is ineligible is found, he certainly would not play.

ROMANCE OF GREEK COPLE CULMINATES IN MARRIAGE HERE

A very pretty romance which began in Greece several years ago, culminated in the marriage of Miss Mary Vales, recently of Tandos, Greece, to Mike Cakmes, at the home of the groom's brother, John Cakmes on Sixteenth street at 8 o'clock last night. The Rev. Lewis of Cincinnati, Greek Orthodox minister, performed the impressive classic ceremony of the church. Tom Stevens was best man.

The house was appropriately decorated for the even. Ninety guests, including some of the most prominent men and women of Middlesboro, were present. The newly married couple expect to leave for Chicago for a wedding trip today after which they will return to Middlesboro to make their ohme.

Mr. Cakmes, the proprietor of the Busy Bee and Wabash cafes, has lived in Middlesboro for three years. The bride has made three trips to the United States but was denied admission by immigration officials the first two times because the monthly allotment of Greeks had already been admitted to this country. The couple had been life-long friends in their native town, Tandos.

By Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 15.—The State Highway Commission will leave to its successor the question of letting further road contracts it was decided, at a meeting here Monday. The commission approved several hundred thousand dollars worth of contracts already made and instructed Joe S. Boggs, State Highway Engineer, to reply to the counties which sent delegations here with requests for early advertising projects.

During the session of the commission, many counties appeared with road plans and all were taken under advertisement. At the close or the meeting it was decided that lack of funds would prevent further advertising of work and members agreed that the new work should be left with the incoming commission to be named by Gov.-elect William J. Fields.

Among the contracts authorized was.

Boone Trail: Knox County, 14.1 miles grade and drain, Barbourville-Corbin route, Costello Bros., $65,457.20.

RED CROSS DRIVE IS SUCCESSFUL

Nearly Four Hundred Members Are Obtained in Roll Call Here Yesterday

With $740 already in by noon today and two committees yet to be heard from in the Red Cross roll call yesterday, Mrs. R. L. Maddox, chairman of the campaign, said today that she felt it had put over very successfully and that she was greatly pleased with Middlesboro's ready response.

Forty women worked on the roll call yesterday, but one of these who were appointed from the Woman's Club coming out and taking part in the house to house solicitation. The entire town was covered, with the exception of the wholesale district which will be solicited today. The workers said they did not have much trouble getting membership to the roll call as most people in Middlesboro seem to appreciate the Red Cross work here. Most of the rebuffs were from people who were unable to disassociate the membership drive from the Community Chest Red Cross budget.

CHARLES T. WHITE PLEASED WITH VISIT TO HARROGATE, PRAISES DR. MATTHEWS VERY HIGHLY

Charles T. White, political news editor of the New York Tribune and a former tax commissioner of New York City, who spent Sunday and Monday at the inaugural of Robert Orville Matthews, the new president of Lincoln Memorial University, says there is no doubt about the successful growth of the great mountain school.

In commenting on his visit to Harrogate, Mr. White said:

"The finest thing up there is the spirit of the men and women and the boys and girls. It is a novel experience to an easterner to see a large assembly hall filled with young and old, not leaving out a crying baby here and there, listening with close attention to speaker after speaker, covering two days, dilating upon Americanism, the virtues of the mountaineers and the possibilities of an institution like the Memorial University, with its mission to contribute something real to civilization.

"Finest Address"

"Perhaps I may be pardoned for saying that as a veteran political reporter for a New York newspaper I have heard and seen about all there is in the line of spellbinders. I am stating a fact when I say that President Matthews yesterday afternoon, following his formal installation, made the finest address I have listened to in the last ten years. He is a scholarly young man of extraordinary ability. I had the pleasure of listening to Lloyd George ten days ago in New York. The Britisher dwelt on international issues, while Dr. Matthews spoke principally on the contribution to the glories of our national progress by the Scotch-Irish pioneers who came to this country more than two centuries ago and whose descendants drifted into the highlands of Tennessee and Kentucky and Virginia. Dr. Matthews' address was far and away superior to that by the great Britisher.

"Former Governor Lowden of Illinois made two notable addresses, the one yesterday in acknowledgement of the degree of doctor of laws conferred by the university. He is a natural orator, but the occasion inspired him to unsurpassed excellence, giving his auditors something to think over for a long time to come. Governor and Mrs. Lowden are keenly interested in the big school, and doubtless will aid it. Another of the notable visitors was Clarence Howard, president of the Commonwealth Steel company, of Granite City, opposite St. Louis. Mr. Howard is a welfare worker with a national reputation. He seemed keenly to enjoy every minute at Harrogate and Middlesboro. Prohibition Commissioner Roy A. Haynes and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis also spoke with eloquence and power. The occasion was enthusiastic and impressive from beginning to end.

"Dr. John Wesley Hill, the chancellor, says that he has rolled up an endowment of $700,000, and that there is more to come. If there is anyone who can make the people understand the merits and needs of Lincoln Memorial University, it is Dr. Hill.

Charm of Mountains

"With good state roads the Cumberland Gap region ought to attract tourists from all over the country. The mountains are almost as rugged as the Rockies, and they have the added charm of being wooded.

"If the spirit of true Americanism is to be fostered, as it assuredly will be, there is no better place to help it along than at Harrogate. The boys and girls have the great advantage of coming from plain homes. They are unspoiled and know the value of money better than the children of the prosperous, who have too much done for them as a usual thing. The big idea at the Lincoln Memorial University is the spirit of Abraham Lincoln. One speaker suggested that the curriculum carry an intensive course of study on the life, accomplishments and spirit of the Great Emancipator. Oddly enough, the one who suggested it was by birth an Armenian, Mr. Cartikyan, a man with a true appreciation of the greatest American. His suggestion was received with great enthusiasm. It seems to me that it would be well to carry out the idea. The spirit of Lincoln is needed on both sides of the sea. He did not believe it was worth while to hate anyone — he said it was a waste of time. The nations of Europe need the Lincolnian philosophy, for they seem to be working overtime in hating and suspecting each other. America also needs an allopathic dose of Lincoln, as well, for, as a whole, we are settling down to a rather low plane of materialism."—Knoxville Sentinel.

TRIAL OF ALVA BALL IN PROGRESS

Case Goes to Jury in London Court Today—Frank Ball's Trial to Follow

Alva Ball Not Guilty

LONDON, Nov. 15.—(Late Bulletin)—The Alva Ball jury was out 25 minutes and brought in a verdict of not guilty. The Frank Ball jury is being empaneled this afternoon.

Trial of Alva Ball was begun in London Monday and continued through yesterday. The case goes to the jury today and verdict will probably be reached before evening. Frank Ball's case is called to be tried as soon as Alva Ball's case is finished. Both Alva Ball and his father, Frank Ball, are charged with malicious shooting and wounding, with intent to kill, in the shooting affray at Pineville May 27, 1922. The cases are bing tried before Judge A. T. W. Manning.

John Hurst, the man whom Alva Ball is accused of shooting, was first to testify for the state. He said he was shot through the face, upstairs, picked himself up, and staggered down the steps to get medical attention from Dr. Bingham. When he got downstairs he said, he turned to the left and was shot in the back by some one he did not see. While lying on the floor, Hurst continued, Alva Ball shot him through the hand. A 44 or 45 bullet was taken from his wrist. Hurst declared that Alva Ball was standing in the north end of the hall at the entrance with his foot holding open the door.

William Taylor said he was a farmer from Knox county. He said he was standing in the court house at the east entrance after the shooting upstairs and started to go up when he saw a man coming down, bleeding, rubbing blood off his face with his left hand and carrying a pistol in his right hand. Taylor said a man with a pistol in each hand was following the first one and that he took the latter for an officer trying to catch the other one. The first man turned down the hall to his left, Taylor said. When the second got down he, too, turned and shot at the first. "A bullet came from the north and almost struck me," Taylor said. "I don't know who fired it, but I jumped behind the corner."

Saw Hurst Shot

John Nuckols said he was in the court house and saw John Hurst come down the steps and saw some one shoot at him. "I thought he was shooting at me," declared Nuckols, "and I turned and ran toward the north door. Some man near the door got out of my way and gave me room to run. Belcher was behind me pressing close. When we got out he said, 'they're going to kill us.' I stumbled over a barbed wire and I thought it was a bullet hit me. I was scared—thought they were after me." Nuckols said he saw a man at the door who looked too big for Alva Ball and that he didn't see any one shoot from the north door.

Eugene Collins said he was standing outside the door at the north end of the court house and saw Alva Ball fire two shots at an angle of about 45 degrees downward back into the court house. "Alva Ball was standing in the north doorway with his foot holding open the door," Collins said. "I was close enough to him to reach out and touch him." Alva backed out, Collins continued, and went to the southwest corner of the court house, on the lawn. "I didn't know Alva Ball at the time," he said, "but a few minutes later John Smith told me who he was." Collins said he did not see Martin Green or Henry Bolton.

Tobe Coleman, colored, who works at the Continental hotel, testified that he was with Mrs. Mealy out on the street just north of the courthouse getting ready to plant some flowers. He saw Alva Ball back out of the north entrance and fire one shot back into the court house and then go out to the northwest corner of the court house lawn, then on to his automobile.

Alva Ball Testifies

Alva Ball, witness in his own behalf, said he was in an automobile in the street north of the court house when he heard the shooting start. Thinking his father might be in trouble, he got out of the car and with his brother, Floyd Ball and Tom Manning, he went toward the courthouse. He started to go in at the north door first, he said, but after going up the steps to the first landing he noticed the crowd coming out and turned and went back to the west entrance, going to the door, but not inside the court house. He said he had no ill feeling toward John Hurst, that he did not shoot him and that he was not in the court house that day after the shooting began. He said he had two pistols, but that no bullet was fired out of either, as found when he was arrested by Garrett Smith and Fred Bryant.

Martin Green testified that he was at the north end of the court house with George Vanbeber and Henry Bolton when the shooting started upstairs. He said he saw Floyd Ball, Alva Ball and Tom Manning running from their car across the court house yard and go toward the west entrance, and that they all had guns. He said Alva did not come up the walk and did not stop at the north entrance, that he did not see him go in or come out at the north entrance, and that he did not see him do any shooting. Green said he saw Alva later in the basement.

J. C. Slusher of Lone Mountain, Tenn., testified that he was in the court house in Pineville that day and saw John Hurst come downstairs but that he did not see or hear any shots from the north door.

Ben Asher said he was in the court house and saw John Hurst come down stairs and saw some one shoot him in the back. He said he did not see or hear any shot from the north entrance.

COUSIN OF ENRICO CARUSO, IMMORTAL SINGER, LIVES HERE

A relative of the immortal Caruso lives in Middlesboro.

John Caruso, who modestly admits that the departed singer of the silvery voice was his third cousin has recently moved here from Harlan and will shortly become a partner in a local restaurant business.

The internationally loved Enrico and John Caruso both lived in Eastern Italy and were very well acquainted. John, who does not resemble the famous singer to any great extent, does not lay claims to any great musical ability; in fact, he says that his cousin was undoubtedly the best musician of the Caruso family.

John came to America in 1908. Two years later he returned to his native country and served his six years in the Italian army. He returned to this country two years ago. He was employed in the Harlan mines until a month ago, when he came to Middlesboro to go into business.

"Olda country good for da rich man; no good for poor man;" he stated in broken, but concise English. While business in general is good there, the factories are "all time full up" with employes, he states, and America is the place to "maka da mon."

ROBSION THINKS PARK CHANCE GOOD

Congressman, Here Last Night on Way Back to Washington, Optimistic on Subject

Prospects for the ultimate establishment of a national park on Pinnacle mountain are very good, provided the requisite amount of acreage may be obtained, according to Congressman J. M. Robsion, who was in Middlesboro last night. The congressman says that he will do all in his power toward the park but that about 15,000 acres in addition to that which may be obtained from the Lincoln Memorial University will be necessary.

Dr. Robsion was en route from Barbourville to Washington where he will resume his official duties. He was a guest at the Cumberland Hotel last night where a number of his local friends were with him during the evening. He left Middlesboro for Washington this morning.

FIRST HINTS OF CHRISTMAS COME FROM POST OFFICE

Even though Christmas is more than five weeks distant the first signs of its approach is heralded by an increase in the number of parcel post packages being received at the post office. These are not direct Christmas gifts, of course, but indicate increased stocks of merchandise for the retailers' holiday trade.

A number of packages intended as Christmas gifts have been dispatched from the local post office, but all these have gone to foreign countries. It was necessary to mail these by November 15 in order that they might be received in time for Christmas.

Almost any size package may be transmitted by parcel post. The maximum weight for distances within the third zone is seventy pounds, while packages weighing as much as fifty pounds may be sent to shorter distances. The maximum weights allowable differ in the various foreign countries, most of the limits being between six and twenty-two pounds.

POSSIBLE ATTEMPT TO OVERRIDE CONSTITUTION

If the terms of the proposed treaty between Great Britain and the United States in regard to the right of search beyond the three-mile limit are as given in the daily papers, this would be an attempt on the part of our administration to override the Constitution and the decisions of the Supreme Court by the technicality of a treaty. This would be a very dangerous move from every point of view. To attempt to fly in the face of the decision of the Supreme Court and to ignore the Constitution would merely serve to lessen the respect of the American people for law observance and teach them to find ways to get around the laws of the land whenever it suited their convenience to do so.

Disastrous in the extreme as this would be from every point of view, there are other disadvantages in the proposed treaty as reported. If we override the Constitution and the Supreme Court and give to English vessels the right to bring liquor into American harbors we will deal a body blow at the American merchant marine and place a premium upon the British shipping interests. We will at the same time practically justify by such illegal methods the breaking of laws by the liquor interests in general.

This country has set out on a deliberate basis to abolish the liquor traffic. Its laws on that subject have been upheld by the Supreme Court and any nation which is not willing to abide by the laws of this land should not be given any special consideration which violate our own laws. America The Beautiful

O beautiful for spacious skies,
For amber waves of grain,
For purple mountain majesties
Above the fruited plain.
America! America!
God shed His grace on thee.
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea.

O beautiful for pilgrim feet
Whose stern impassioned stress
A thoroughfare for freedom beat
Across the wilderness.
America! America!
God mend thine ev'ry flaw,
Confirm thy soul in self-control,
Thy liberty in law.

O beautiful for heroes proved
In liberating strife,
Who more than self their country loved,
And mercy more than life.
America! America!
May God thy gold refine
Till all success be nobleness
And ev'ry gain divine.

O beautiful for patriot dream
That sees beyond the years
Thine alabaster cities gleam
Undimmed by human tears.
America! America!
God shed His grace on thee.
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea.

LETTER FROM SALLY ATHERTON TO BEATRICE GRIMSHAW

It has been quite a while since I wrote you, dear Bee, but I have really had nothing very pleasant to write. In fact I was a little bit ashamed to write and tell you all that is in my mind and heart and I knew that if I sat down to talk to you on paper that is just what I should do.

Of course you know that Sam is regaining his eyesight rapidly and, strange as it may seem, I think I am happier with Sam blind than I am with him seeing. I presume it is because we are both so arrogant. Sam insists that I shall do exactly as he wishes me to and I insist that I shall have some individuality and opinion of my own. We split on that rock continually.

It has almost come to an open rupture again, dear Bee, and I would be very miserable were it not Sam's cousin, Jimmie Congdon, a young man whom Mr. Hamilton took on to be Sam's secretary and incidentally Sam's eyes. The boy is charming. I never met a man who is as unselfish. Do not write to me to be careful and not get unduly interested in him for he is at least 10 years younger than I.

I did not start this letter to write you about my own affairs. Like everybody else nowadays I am much interested in the movies. In fact, that is about the only amusement that I allow myself. Of course Sam cannot go, consequently I seldom go to them in the evening. But usually I take in the supper show or rather the one which goes on at 5 o'clock. Then I get home about 7, in time for dinner.

I have seen a very marvelous picture lately. At least it seems to me that it is marvelous in its depiction of a woman's heart. It is called "Trumping His Heart," a rather foolish title, but all moving picture titles are silly, don't you think?

I am writing to you about it because it is produced by Abram Einstein and it seems to me that is where Dick is working. I'd like to know more about that girl who took the principal part. There was something about her that seemed real. I knew of course that if Dick were there he had written to you all about her.

The story is one of a girl who finds that the man she has loved for a year or two has married a girl in his own set. She sends for him just before the marriage and gives him back his letters. A few months after his marriage his wife has an automobile accident, her baby is born prematurely and they despair of her life.

The girl who has been playing in very hard luck trying to support her own child gets a chance in a large millinery store and she decides that she will give her baby to its father and the woman he married and start all over again.

Quietly one night she leaves it on their doorstep. The wife of the man is delighted. The man, who has his suspicions, has some qualms of conscience, but more fears of being found out. But he cannot help liking the baby. The girl succeeds greatly in her new work and wants her baby back and she makes overtures to the man for him.

Providentially she has kept one letter, the most compromising of all and she tells the man she will give him back this letter if he will give her the child. Otherwise she will send the letter to the wife.

He tells her to go ahead and do it, that his wife will not believe her. She determines to carry out her threat by trumping his heart.

Here comes Sam with a new advertising scheme. Will finish this letter tomorrow.

TOMORROW—The letter is continued—The story of Paula Perier.

A Sonnet

Youth fell upon me like a fairy gift,
With all the joys attendant thereunto—
A gladsome heart, and pleasures not a few;
'Mid mirth and song the time ran smooth and swift,
"Father of Life!" I prayed, "Oh, let me drift
Thus like a stream, with prospects fair and new Opening ever to the startled view,
'Mid pleasant banks beneath an azure lift."
My prayer was granted—joy was all my own,
But suddenly a terror fell on me
In the gay revel of my mirthful play.
"Father of Life!" I prayed, "Not joy alone!
Send sorrows, too, as oft as need may be,
Lest, drunk with pleasure, I forget to pray."

Eggless Recipes

If you would make a boiled cake frosting without eggs or butter try this recipe. The frosting is soft and creamy and has a delicious taste

Boiled Icing

One and one-half cups granulated sugar, 2-3 cup milk, 2 teaspoons flour, few grains salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Put sugar and milk in a smooth sauce pan. Let stand until sugar and milk are well blended. Cook until a soft ball is formed when a few drops are tried in a saucer of cold water. Do not stir after the sirup begins to boil. Put the flour in a bowl. Just before the sirup reaches the soft ball stage pour a little over the flour, stirring to make a smooth paste. Add two tablespoons more of the sirup and stir until smooth. Return the sirup to the fire and finish cooking. Pour into flour and sirup mixture and let stand until cool. Add vanilla and beat until creamy. Spread on warm cake.

Caramel sauce is always good on a pudding or as a "dip" for ice cream.

Caramel Sauce

One and one-half cups granulated sugar, 1¼ cups boiling water, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 dessertspoon cornstarch.

Melt sugar in an iron or aluminum frying pan. Put over a hot fire and stir constantly until melted. Let the sirup become a golden brown. Add boiling water and simmer until sirup is dissolved. Add butter and cook ten minutes. Dissolve cornstarch in a little cold milk and stir into boiling sirup. Let boil one minute and put over hot water to keep hot.

Steamed puddings are always light and moist and altogether rather better than the average baked pudding

Steamed Pudding

Two tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons milk, ½ cup white flour, 2-3 cup graham flour, ¼ teaspoon soda 1-8 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg, ½ cup stoned dates.

Melt butter. Add molasses and milk. Add graham flour and mix well. Mix and sift white flour, soda, salt and spices. Add to first mixture. Stir in dates. Turn into a buttered mold and steam one and one half hours. Serve with lemon sauce.

Lemon Sauce

One and one-half cups boiling water, 3-4 cup sugar, 2 dessertspoons cornstarch, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, few grains salt.

Mix sugar and cornstarch. Slowly add water, stirring constantly. Boil until clear and thick, stirring to prevent sticking. Add butter, lemon juice and rind and cook two minutes longer. Remove from the fire and serve warm.

Eggless Cake

Two cups flour, 1½ cups sugar, 4 tablespoons lard, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-8 teaspoon salt, ½ cup seeded and chopped raisins.

Rub shortening into flour with tips of fingers. Stir in sugar. Dissolve soda in sour milk and stir into mixture Beat well and add cinnamon, salt and raisins. Turn into a buttered and floured loaf cake pan and bake forty-five minutes in a moderate oven

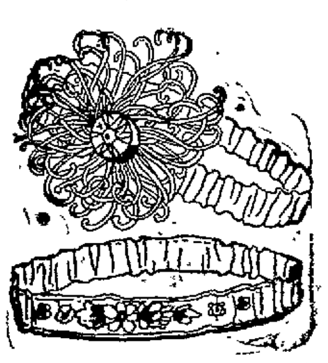
Spanish Rice

Two tablespoons bacon fat, 1 large onion, 2 cups canned tomatoes, ½ cup rice, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Wash rice thoroughly through several waters, rubbing it between the hands. Drain. Melt bacon fat in frying pan. Add onion, peeled and cut in thin slices. Cook until onion is a pale straw color. Add tomatoes and sprinkle over rice Season with salt and pepper. Cover and cook slowly for an hour. If the rice becomes too dry before tender add a little boiling water. Stir to prevent sticking. Serve very hot. A Spanish onion is preferred, but two small, plain, ordinary onions can be used.

Christmas Gifts

FANCY GARTERS



Garters have become so very decorative in recent years that though come under the head of "useful" gifts, they may be as luxurious as you desire.

Take two pieces of inch wide ribbon and sew them together to form a casing for the elastic You may make the outside of pink ribbon and the inside of blue and encircle it with French flowers. Or you can use more substantial colors, such as green and rose, or navy blue and gold.

A very elaborate pair may be covered with pink satin and finished with a pompon of pink ostrich feathers with a tiny rosette of the ribbon inside the pompon.

Doing What He "Oughtn't" To

IT isn't as bad for a little boy to do what he oughtn't to as it is to eat what he oughtn't to. For in play he spends energy—which helps him grow. But unless he eats nutritious food, he doesn't get that energy back.

It is easy to give your growing children vigor and robust health when you serve them such food as Karo, for they love its delicious, unusual taste and want "lots of it". And in eating Karo, they add to their blood and tissue almost directly a large percentage of Dextrose. Karo is rich in Dextrose, which, as any doctor can tell you, is one of our great energy foods.

Every day in every way the children like it better than butter. Serve Karo, either Blue Label or Red Label on sliced bread. Both highly nutritious.

Notable Victories For Kentucky Horses

Desha Breckenridge in The Lexington Herald

IN the brilliant [illegible] to witness the Latonia Championship Stakes [illegible] there were probably more distinguished newspaper [illegible] ever been sent by papers from every section of the country [illegible] the race which would settle the championship of the three-year-old thoroughbreds. From New York, Chicago, [illegible] Kansas City, Buffalo, even from far away Portland and [illegible] came writers to witness and describe the [illegible] Zev [illegible] and My Own which [illegible] would have been selected to race against Papyrus [illegible] Zev, winner of the Kentucky Derby, and My Own [illegible] In Memoriam would [illegible] reported [illegible] Zev [illegible] owned in New York and My Own [illegible] and owned by [illegible]

[illegible] made [illegible] the [illegible]

That [illegible] to have [illegible] frank [illegible] Churchill Downs at the [illegible] in favor of [illegible] in Kentucky [illegible] the contest of the [illegible] the beauty of the grounds is each mentioned by all the writers [illegible] emphasized by one and [illegible]

It was [illegible] there is no man who breeds thoroughbreds [illegible] who was not interested in the result of the Latonia Championship. Due to the [illegible] race between Papyrus and Zev [illegible] the whole thoroughbred world was [illegible] the Latonia Championship in which Zev was to demonstrate his [illegible] it to be revealed that though he [illegible] the [illegible] Derby there was another three-year-old in America [illegible] of the result was eagerly awaited in [illegible] in England, France, Argentine, Brazil, Italy and Spain [illegible] produce [illegible]

We have never seen [illegible] that created such intense interest among those who were present to watch. The throng filled every crevice of the grandstand and [illegible] the infield was tense and silent [illegible] minutes [illegible] the horses came in the [illegible] and the greeting given to the horses was [illegible] more like an involuntary exclamation forced from them [illegible] the applause usually accorded.

It was but natural the victory of the Kentucky-bred and Kentucky-owned horse in the Kentucky [illegible] aroused the most unbounded enthusiasm [illegible] after the tenseness of [illegible] struggle there was evidence of good sportsmanship and kindly consideration.

* * * *

Saturday was a great day for the breeding interests of Kentucky. A three-year-old bred, foaled and raised in Fayette county demonstrated that he is the best of his age in America, the easy superior of the victor of the international race. In the Pimlico Saturday a two-year-old, also a product of Fayette county, proved himself the winner in a stake that enriched the coffers of his owner $50,000 and more. As the winnings of the Latonia Championship enriched the owner of In Memoriam.

This result is intangible and yet a very definite and special benefit not only to the breeding interests of Kentucky but to every interest in Kentucky. The effect is to induce those who want to breed the best thoroughbreds to seek farms in Kentucky on which to breed them, to give an added value to the annual crop of yearlings produced in Kentucky, to attract to Kentucky buyers from this country at present and when as should soon happen American thoroughbreds are sought by international buyers, buyers from other countries.

Such a contest as the Latonia Championship bringing together citizens of many states devoted to thoroughbreds in the [illegible] best interests of the sport. Such a group as were gathered there, among whom were men distinguished in every vocation and women who grace every walk of life, gives an indication of the hold racing has on the imagination and the interest of the American people, and assurance that when it is maintained on the plane on which it is conducted in Kentucky it will receive unstinted support.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN THE WORLD

German Revolt—World Conference—Veterans

[illegible] the Hitler-Ludendorff [illegible] his movement in Bavaria means [illegible] of Germany.

It doesn't end unrest. It doesn't mean that there may not be a [illegible] uprising next thing. Yet the completeness and speed of the royalist fizzle makes it look as if the strength of that kind of sentiment was much overestimated. Maybe the same thing [illegible] sentiment.

On the other hand the republican [illegible] seems to be more [illegible] scattered thin [illegible] thought [illegible] apparently [illegible] to breaking into a lot of little states [illegible] it [illegible] to be.

Probably Ends It

General Von Ludendorff [illegible] was real organizer of the nationalist [illegible] Adolph Hitler, [illegible] Mussolini was his mouthpiece.

Hitler proclaimed a new regime in Germany. As its regent or head he named [illegible] Kahr who [illegible] of the German state of Bavaria. He nominated himself [illegible] chancellor. Ludendorff was to be military commander. [illegible] the idea was to make Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria [illegible] of Germany.

Rupprecht repudiated the whole [illegible] Kahr not only repudiated it but told [illegible] troops to put the uprising down. Hitler and Ludendorff had to surrender. Hitler [illegible] to have escaped later, but Ludendorff [illegible] prisoner.

That probably ends it all for the present.

The ex-crown prince has returned from Holland to Germany, which [illegible] or [illegible] nothing. He is much a citizen of the country as any other German, so why shouldn't he live there?

Count America Out

France has [illegible] the attempt England made to get the world's big [illegible] on the [illegible] discussion of the French claims against Germany [illegible] discussion it was hoped would lead toward an end of Europe's troubles.

The Paris government pretended to be willing to talk matters over but the only terms it would do so on were such that it was clear no agreement could be arrived at. In fact, few people believed France ever intended to permit an [illegible] agreement which would [illegible] Germany [illegible]

"CUDDLE UP" WILL PLAY HERE TOMORROW NIGHT

In "Cuddle Up" there is a scene which shows the "home that Love built," in other words it is commonly called a Love Nest. Now the question is "How much love does it take to make a Love Nest?" This is one of the difficult problems that will be answered tomorrow night at the Manring theatre.

This one subject has had more discussion over the telephone and by mail almost than prohibition, but it is answered in a most satisfactory manner in O. J. Weeks' Famous Cuddle Up Musical Comedy by a dozen of the most beautiful girls in the theatrical business.

It is claimed that Love Nests are castles built in the air without a solid foundation—you know the kind, that when the minister asks you a lot of questions and you blush and reply "I will" or "I do." Of course you mention [illegible] things [illegible] straws of the [illegible] and in time [illegible] to grant your divorce.

Just a little secret we will let you in on [illegible] that [illegible] all the girls in Cuddle Up [illegible] single and waiting for their chance for a love nest, of course some of them are divorcees who have travelled the route before and are willing to share their troubles with you now. However, this is one big scene which is for laughing purposes only, and not meant to offend any one. If you want to enjoy a good laugh get your wife, sweetheart or a friend and take an evening off from your troubles and cares and visit "Cuddle Up."

A corn plant in India stands out [illegible] rival of Jack's beanstalk. It is reported to have grown [illegible] inches in five days during extremely warm weather.

A little kerosene added to enamel will make it [illegible] apply. Stir in [illegible] one tablespoonful to the gallon [illegible] Popular Mechanics.

A New Health Cure

A new health cure in on the market. There are about thirteen millions of this cure in the United States. A leading automobile official is authority for the statement, that after a careful investigation, it has been found that the automobile is the cause for an increased lease on life.

In 1903, according to this official, the average life span in the United States was only 37.64 years. It has jumped to 48.66 years. "In this connection it is interesting to note that in 1903 there were only 70,850 automobiles in the United States. In 1913 when motor cars had increased to 461,500, the life span of the average person had advanced to 41.01 years. In the last ten years the motor car population has jumped to 13,002,427 and the national life emergency has risen 7.65 years." This would seem to indicate that the automobile is actually making life longer and happier, in automobile reasoning.

Now comes Dr. Chas. H. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., who states that cleanliness and intelligence are the great aids in avoiding infection and lengthening life. The boy of today has twelve more years coming to him than his grandfather did. Five more years could be added if every man and woman would undergo a rigid health examination when 40 years of age, and follow health rules.

Dr. James B. Eagleson of Seattle says that medical science has advanced the span of life at least ten years during the last quarter century.

From the foregoing it would be a matter of choice to decide the cause for increased longevity. If a large number who ride in automobiles don't worry too much about the upkeep and where the money is coming from to pay up the balance on the car, all well and good. It certainly takes them away from four walls into the open air and sunshine.

But if you are fair, fat and forty, look out for trouble if automobile riding is all the health exercise you take.

LOCAL READERS BUY MAGAZINES PRIMARILY FOR PRETTY COVERS

Do pretty pictures on the cover sell the magazine?

They do, according to Ed Givens, local news dealer. The average casual reader looks over the well-stocked tables and buys the magazines whose cover design attracts his eye. This applies to readers of both sexes, who have no definite periodical in mind when they are looking for something to read.

What classes of magazines lead in popularity in Middlesboro?

Those containing the western type of fiction come first. More copies of "Western Stories" are sold than any other magazine, not excepting "The Saturday Evening Post."

A large number of love story magazines are bought by women readers, "Love Stories" heading the list. "I Confess," "True Confessions" and other periodicals of this class come next in popularity with women readers. As might be expected, no magazines of this class are sold to men.

"The American Magazine is the most popular of the middle class fiction and literary magazines, though the "Cosmopolitan," "Red Book" and the woman's housekeeping magazines are popular with local readers.

Of the high-class literary magazines the "Atlantic Monthly" has the largest sales. "Harper's," "The Dial," Scribner's," "Review of Reviews" and "The Century" are others preferred by Middlesboro people. Here, as elsewhere, the number of magazines sold of this class is in the minority.

Over 150 magazines are kept in stock at the local news stand. "My Story" one of the "confession" class and "The Kentuckian," issued by the University of Kentucky, are the latest additions to the local market.
